TECT CARS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—With an alarming increase in violence in the traction strike today, the Police adopted rigid plans to check disorders. Of the 20 arrests since last night, 15 of the prisoners were charged with felony. Those caught in the act of hurling missiles were tried under the section of the penal code which provides a penalty of from five to 20 years in prison for endangering the lives of passengers on cars.

A special squad of detectives was assigned to the work of guarding cross-town cars, where most of the disorders have occurred.

Police today reported an increase of subway, elevated and surface cars in operation over yesterday.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Rioting broke out fresh in the traction strike early today, after a night of violence. The apparent failure of negotiations to prevent a general industrial strike, if the traction difficulty is not settled by 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, caused added seriousness.

Notwithstanding the refusal of President Shonts of the Interborough to arbitrate with the carmen's union, when appealed to by the Merchants committee, efforts to bring about industrial peace have not been abandoned. Another conference of business men, the mayor, Chairman Straus of the public service commission and probably the union leaders, has been arranged for Thursday afternoon at city hall. There is an undeniable feeling, however, that it will accomplish but little.

Despite the outbreak of violence on the part of strike sympathizers the various transportation systems of the city were in better shape early today than they have been since the beginning of the trouble. Subway and elevated trains were running on full schedule and surface cars were moving freely.

On the Queens County road, 99 cars were being operated. The company ran an average of 140 cars during rush hours.

The rioting which broke out last night continued without interruption today. Many persons were injured in attacks on subway, elevated and surface cars. Police reserves found it almost impossible to cope with the situation. Louis Will, a motorman strikebreaker, was attacked by two men and severely beaten on his way to work. His face was pummeled, eyes blackened and his scalp torn. Two striking motormen identified by Will were locked up.

North and southbound Second avenue elevated trains passing 64th street were showered with stones and bottles. Joe McGovern was arrested for hurling missiles.

An attempt of the Third avenue line to run night cars on 59th street cross was terminated by attacks and at the request of the sorely pressed police.

POSSE IN BOATS
BATTLE 4 BANDITS

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 20.—A long range battle in boats was fought off Rock Harbor today by a posse led by Sheriff Hardie and the four bandits who last Friday robbed the Homestead bank of $8,000. The posse's boat was sunk by rifle fire and the bandits escaped to Largo Island. Reinforcements have been rushed to the sheriff and the hunt has been renewed.

TOWN WIPED OUT.

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 20.—Eric, Mich., 18 miles north of here, is reported to have been nearly wiped out by fire which started about 11 o'clock this morning. The wires are down. Help was asked of the Toledo fire department by way of Detroit.

TOLEDO.—The quarantine on moving picture theaters, schools and churches, established several weeks ago on account of infantile paralysis, was ordered removed today by health authorities.

LARGEST U. S. BATTLESHIP SETS HIT RECORD

4-INCH GUNS ON U.S.S. PENNSYLVANIA

ONLY RUN SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Scoring five hits out of 12 on a small target at a distance of 20,000 yards, approximately 11 miles, the battleship Pennsylvania in the test of her new 14-inch guns has made what ordnance experts here believe to be a world's record in gunnery. The exact size of the target was not revealed by the navy department. It was stated, however, that the five hits were actual hits and not "plotted." In gunnery practice a battle ship is always allowed a hit when her shots strike near enough to the target to indicate that a hit would have been scored had a battle ship been fired upon instead of the small target. That is called "plotting." But in this case five hits were registered on the target.

The Pennsylvania, which is the largest vessel in the navy, was commissioned at Newport News on June 12.

The accompanying picture was made at the Brooklyn navy yard where the ship put in for minor alterations after the gun tests.

J. E. Russel's Record
In Congress Shows His Tendency to Side-Step

By David W. Bowman.

Since the adjournment of the Sixty-fourth congress, efforts have been under way to obtain some accurate record of the votes of J. Ed. Russell, congressman from the Fourth district, of the important legislation under consideration at the first session. At last a complete register has been obtained, direct from Washington, and some interesting information is contained therein.

Russell's activity in congress at the handsome salary of $7,500 a year—$625 per month or $156.25 every Saturday, as you choose to conceive it—consists mainly of voting when the roll was called. As far as introducing bills is concerned, the register is devoid of anything of that nature. There is no "Russell bill." There are some pension bills in his name, but as far as getting anything for the Fourth district is concerned the single achievement is the now famous "one bronze cannon with suitable carriage and mounting and a set of cannon balls" secured for the park at Ft. Loraine.

The fact that the treasury department asked Russell to introduce a bill appropriating $85,000 for a site for a new post office in Lima is the most eloquent passage in his brief chapter as a legislator. The postal department was convinced by Postmaster James E. Sullivan, after more than 15 months' work, that the local office was inadequate for the demands of floor space and working room. The postal authorities converted the treasury department and the latter requested Russell to toss the bill into the hopper. Ordinarily a congressman is on the alert as far as the needs of his constituents are concerned, and is after a postal appropriation long before it is really necessary.

Another factor in the record of the Sidney man is the lack of developments in the cases of the Delphos and St. Marys sites, secured by Congressman J. Henry Goeke before he left office. Reliable information shows that since Russell's entrance into congress the matters have been dropped—at least, nothing has been done with them since.

On the "yea" and "nay" votes Russell's trend of thought appears rather difficult to determine, for the record shows that he has not followed any logical course. Of a total of 60 roll calls involving "yea" and "nay" votes, his record is as follows: "Yea" 31, "nay" 21, did not vote 7, answered "present" 1.

"Did not vote" is merely a parliamentary manner of stating that J. Ed. dodged. The measures or resolutions which he evaded are as follows: Cotton statistics resolution, of interest to the south and therefore to the democrats (page 6336 of Daily Record or "green book"), a bill incorporating the American Academy of Arts (page 6302), a bill amending and extending the juvenile court of the District of Columbia (page 7703), the vote calling for the "previous question" or motion to recommit the army bill (page 7771), the special order for the agricultural appropriation bill (page 7962), the arrest of H. Snowden Marshall (page 11123), and the motion concurring in the senate amendments to the house naval bill, or "building program" (page 24705). On a point of parliamentary rule in the discussion of the naval bill Russell answered "present."

Just why anybody should sidestep the above questions passes understanding, for none of them are loaded with political dynamite. The incorporation of the American Academy of Arts, an institution copied after the French Academy of Letters and establishing something akin to the Hall of Fame of New York University, is certainly harmless. The extension of the juvenile court of the District of Columbia should not cause alarm, for the reason that nobody residing in the District votes in the Fourth Ohio. The "previous question" on the recommitment of the army bill is not fully explained in the record, but in ninety cases out of a hundred such motions are purely technical. It may well have been, however, that the call was a play for time or a filibuster to delay or obstruct passage of the appropriation. The same explanation may indicate Russell's reasons for sidestepping the special order for the agricultural appropriation bill, but as

BATTERED BODY OF
WOMAN IS FOUND IN ROOMING HOUSE

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 20.—Zena Arnold, 30, was beaten to death and her battered body was found this morning in the back room of a rooming house at 1295 East Third street.

Police are seeking a man as her slayer.

The theory held by detectives is that the woman was attacked in an alley adjoining the rooming house probably Monday night or early Tuesday morning, that she was beaten into semi-consciousness and dragged through the window of the room in which she was found.

There, it is thought, she revived, and was then beaten to death.

Police efforts to locate a man, who for several weeks occupied the room in which the murder was committed, were unsuccessful. James Daldos, who, with his wife, Mary, operates the rooming house, said the man had not been seen since Monday night shortly after returning from work. Mrs. Daldos said the man was known in the neighborhood only by his first name, "Joe."

Charles Arnold identified the body at the morgue as that of his sister, who, for the last two years, had been going by her maiden name, although she had been married to a man named Frank Dunlap, from whom she separated three years ago.

According to the murdered woman's brother, Charles Arnold, the family moved to Cleveland from Shreve, O., ten years ago. He said that Zena was married to Frank Dunlap in Alliance, O., 12 years ago.

From a later examination of the body Coroner Byrne thinks death may have been due to a needle passed through the woman's eye into her brain. A small hole through the right eye bears out this theory.

FIVE KILLED AS EXPLOSIVE SHOP
GOES UP IN AIR

HUNTINGTON, Pa., Sept. 20.—

Five men were killed instantly and another sustained probably fatal injuries when a terrific explosion wrecked the air dry building of the Aetna Explosives Company plant east of Mount Union this morning. The dead and injured were all employed in the air dry building, and pieces of bodies were hurled in all directions.

The dead:
CLAYTON CLARK, of Shirleysville, Pa.
GEORGE SCAYER, Orbisonia, Pa.
—PYLES, Orbisonia, Pa.
—Bard, Orbisonia
—Oelch, Lancaster, Pa.

The injured:
William Leman, Cortage, Pa., taken to Huntington hospital, condition critical.

The cause of the explosion has not yet been determined, and probably never will be, inasmuch as Leman, the only survivor, is probably fatally hurt. The blast rocked houses for many miles around and brought people out of their homes with a rush. The air dry building was completely wrecked, sections of it being hurled several hundred yards.

Nearly 50 employees were at work in other buildings and some received minor injuries from broken glass and flying debris. All rushed from their posts fearing a general explosion.

Portions of the bodies of the dead were picked up hundreds of feet from the building in which the explosion occurred. Leman, the injured man, was found in the debris and rushed to Huntington on a special train.

KINGMAN, Ariz., Sept. 20.—The Santa Fe railroad's crack flyer, the California Limited, went into the ditch a few miles east of here early today.

First reports on the accident stated that the engineer and fireman were killed and 11 passengers were injured. The engine and three cars are reported to have left the rails.

The limited was westbound and due in Los Angeles at 2:10 this afternoon. It left Chicago Sunday night. The train is made up of Pullmans, observation and compartment cars and was considered the De Luxe train of the Santa Fe system. It is not yet known how the flyer was ditched.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—A telegram received at the Santa Fe offices here today stated that six passengers, two cooks and two waiters, are known to have been injured when the crack California Limited left the rails east of Kingman, Ariz. The telegram did not give the passengers' names, nor did it give any indication of how serious the wreck was. It made no mention of the death of the fireman and engineer, both of whom were reported killed in despatches from Kingman.

PATERSON, N. J.—Because Harper county, Kansas, refused to appropriate $182, to extradite Peter Jensen, accused of forgery in Sedgewick, Kansas, and arrested here, Jensen was freed.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Continuing their advance into their own country toward Monastir, Servian troops have captured from the Bulgarians two important heights east of the Cerna, the French war office announced today. In the open country between Florina and the Broda river the Bulgarians are making extensive use of their cavalry in efforts to stop the Servian advance, but without avail. The official report states that a strong cavalry attack in this region was repulsed by the Serbs.

The war office today issued the following report from Saloniki:

"On the Struma front our aircraft raided Drama and bombed the railway rolling stock and stores. There were no developments in the Doiran region."

Press reports add that the Servian advance is continuing and the capture of Monastir is imminent, the Bulgarian and German staffs in that city having already departed.

Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria yesterday launched a fierce offensive against the French troops in the region between Clercy and the Somme river who are menacing Peronne from the northwest. The assaults on the French positions in the northern part of this region were sharply checked, the war office announced today. In the southern section the Germans succeeded in penetrating some advanced French elements, but were ejected by French counter attacks.

In the region of Bouchavesnes, the official communique states, a great artillery struggle is in progress.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—That the Germans on the western front are in dire straits for guns and ammunition is indicated by a German official document captured by the British. The document was issued to the German army on August 24 while General Von Falkenhayn was chief of the Teuton general staff and is signed by him.

"The wastage of guns during the last few months," it says, "has been considerably in excess of production. The same is true of ammunition, in our reserves of which there has been a serious diminution."

"It is the duty of all ranks not only in the artillery, to endeavor to remedy this serious state of things."

"All ranks must make a most serious endeavor to assist in the preservation of material as indicated above, for otherwise the making good of losses and the placing of new formations in the field would be rendered impossible."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Premature arrests threaten the success of the government's prosecution of the alleged blackmailers who are declared to have cleaned up nearly a million dollars in the large cities of the country and the summer resorts during the last nine months. Although members of the alleged band are under arrest in Philadelphia and Chicago and others are under surveillance, the leaders, the men and women who are the brains of the band, are still at large. Whether they will be captured admittedly is a question.

With a view to securing complete co-operation among all of the agents of the department and stamping out this sort of blackmail Attorney-General Gregory has summoned here a number of his chief assistants. Those who will devise a general plan of campaign comprise A. Bruce Belaski, chief of the bureau of investigation, with headquarters here; John Knox, assistant in general charge in New York; William M. O'Leary, divisional chief, New York; Frank Galsino, divisional chief, Philadelphia, and J. G. Clabaugh, divisional chief, Chicago. Officials frankly admitted today that following the arrests of the men and women taken in Chicago some one talked too much. As a result elaborate plans for the arrest of all of the members of the blackmailing band, including the men who planned all of the holdups but took no part in them, were spoiled.

TEUTONS STRONGER IN EAST.
Heavy Reinforcements Join Kaiser's Forces in Transylvania.

BUCHAREST, (via London) Sept. 20.—Teuton forces in Transylvania have been heavily reinforced and have opened a strong offensive against the invading Rumanians to the west of Hermannstadt. A statement issued by the war office today admitted that the Rumanian forces had retired slightly in the Stroll valley before the Teuton attacks.

Fighting still continues in Dobruja province, where the Rumanians have repulsed an enemy attack.

ATHENS, Sept. 20.—Official announcement was made today that Premier Calogeropoulos had demanded of Germany the prompt return to Kavala of Greek soldiers who were seized there and taken to German territory. The premier also demanded the return of ammunition and arms belonging to the Greek government which were confiscated at Kavala.

The premier's demands, in the nature of an ultimatum which expires on September 22, were presented to the German minister at Athens on Sunday.

ROME, Sept. 20.—Pope Benedict XV is expected to issue an important declaration in connection with the war at a consistory which will be held here in December. This document probably will set forth at length the efforts that the pontiff has made to restore peace and what effect his efforts have had on the belligerent nations.

Several new cardinals will be created at the consistory, which the Italian government will not oppose. Whether any American will be given the red hat is not yet known.

SOFIA, (via Berlin), Sept. 20.—The war office announced today that Bulgarian troops had captured four villages after fierce fighting on the eastern slopes of the Balkan mountains. It also stated that a great battle was developing to the advantage of the Bulgarians of the Rumanian front.

The battle line on which the Bulgarians have engaged the Rumanians is about 22 miles long, extending eastward of Tuzla, a Rumanian port on the Black sea 15 miles south of Constantza.

The war office statement follows: "Macedonian front: Fierce fighting continues around Florina and the Beles plateau. We occupied the village of Schopovo, matnitza, Gorniporoi and Dolnoporoi.

"Rumanian front: A great battle on the line of Moralin-Masnik-Raoujou-Tuzla is developing to our advantage."

PASTOR HOWEY AND FAMILY ARE GIVEN PARTING RECEPTION

Last evening the parlors of the Epworth M. E. church was the scene of a very pretty reception given in honor of the Rev. M. C. Howey and family who leave this week for Springfield by the members of the Ladies' Aid society and the official board of the church. An interesting program was prepared by the society and was given as follows:

Mrs. Howey and the Misses Howey will be missed very much not only from their own church circle but by their wide circle of friends and fellow workers.

HUSBAND FILES SERIOUS CHARGES IN DIVORCE CASE

That his wife, Margaret E. Rise has been in the company of one C. L. Finch in various towns and cities of Ohio, and Pennsylvania, and that they are now together at Dayton, Ohio, living in an adulterous state, is the complaint made today by Harry W. Rise in his petition for divorce in common pleas court. They were married in Dayton on May 1, 1906, and have one child, Wilford, 3 years old.

He says she refused for the past six months to keep house and care for their child, but sent him to his grandmother's home, later placing him in the children's home in Clinton county without the consent of Rise. A butcher-knife was her method of attack and assault, Rise states.

Rise makes the assertion that he believes she was married prior to becoming his wife and was not divorced. He asks the care, custody and education of the child. Service in the case goes to Clinton county, Ohio.

Mrs. Magdalena Studier yesterday afternoon sought divorce from her husband, Julius A. Studier, to whom she was married on April 23, 1907, in Lima. They have no children.

That he left her and remained away for a year, then returned and stayed a short time, then left, returned again and since April 9, 1912, has remained away is the allegation made. His last known whereabouts was in Detroit, Mich. At no time since their marriage has he contributed to her support, she avers.

The plaintiff asks his dower in her property, known as Inlet No. 2751 in Ashton's subdivision of outlots in Lima, be barred and her maiden name of Margaret Nonschwander be restored.

A. W. MAUK DIES IN TOLEDO.

Mrs. Harry O. Bentley, of 317 West North street, received word today of the death of her uncle, A. W. Mauk, at his home in Toledo. He was a former resident of Lima and Spencerville. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late home in Toledo.

A brother, Stephen Mauk, who has been living in Lafayette, is just returning to Lima, and Marion Mauk, another brother, residing on South Pine street. Mrs. Nancy Irwin, a sister, lives in Fresno, Calif.

NEW CITY CHEMIST.

Mrs. R. W. French was removed from the city hospital to her home at 1002 West High street.

NATIONAL DEFENSE COUNCIL IS CALLED AT WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Immediate organization of the council of national defense, authorized as a part of the administration preparedness program, has been undertaken by Secretary of War Baker.

The council will be composed of the heads of the government departments involved, and representatives of industries throughout the country whose output would be vital to the country in time of war.

A preliminary conference between Secretary Baker, Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary of Commerce Redfield outlined the plans for the organization of the council and for the work to be undertaken in providing for the consolidation and co-operation of American industry and resource in time of war.

The department of commerce will make a survey of the various industries to be organized and will seek to secure the co-operation of these industries at once. The war and navy departments will likewise endeavor to organize such industries as are in touch with their departments through supplying war material.

The council expects to work out a comprehensive scheme that will country on a war basis on 24 hours' notice, and start stream of war supplies into the army organization immediately upon a declaration of war.

FREMONT—Earl Millhous, who becomes county surveyor October 5, says the Lord is on his side. The democratic committee named Millhous as its candidate for surveyor and when Millhous went home to tell his wife she presented him with a son.

VILLA IN RAGE, WON'T GIVE UP

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 20.—The mere mention of surrendering to American authorities so enrages Pancho Villa that he commits murder, according to a legalista agent here today. The agent declared that Villa was approached by two legalista chiefs last week. They suggested that he go to the border and give himself up under promise of lenient prosecution. Villa's answer, according to the tale, was to whip a revolver from a holster on his hip and shoot the men dead. The other legalista agent escaped to the American border.

WARDEN DESCRIBES PRISON SYSTEM AS HE CONDUCTS IT

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—Warden Preston E. Thomas, on the stand in the penitentiary probe today, described charges of "unnecessary cruelty" toward convicts, defended action of his guards when they did use force, and explained in detail the system under which the penitentiary is conducted.

"If a prisoner is in love with his wife and she with him, he has more chances of making good both inside and after he is released," said Thomas. "For that reason we encourage the exchange of letters each week as this keeps alive the love. We allow each prisoner to write to a relative each Sunday."

Thomas admitted that "trusties" are detailed to aid the institutional postmaster censor the incoming and outgoing mail. He said it would cost the state $2,000 more a year to hire help to do this.

"We censor mail because of innocent remarks which might be made, plans to escape formulated, dope smuggled in and brutal statements which would pain the relatives of prisoners," said Thomas.

In illustration the warden cited a reply of a prisoner to his mother who had asked him "to give his heart to Christ." The convict answered: "I need my heart more than Christ does, and if there is no more left of Christ than depicted in pictures of Him on the cross, He won't need it anyway."

This letter, it was testified, was halted and placed in the prisoner's file. Later, when he came up for parole, it was read and a parole denied.

At a penitentiary ball game convict fans can't yell "slide, Kelly, slide," a pitcher or abuse the "umps," Thomas testified. If the fan wants to signify pleasure over a play he can clap his hands.

Thomas said prisoners are allowed one kerchief apiece each week. A guard can't drag a prisoner off to solitary confinement before the man had had a hearing, he said.

The warden said visitors are prohibited from going through the prison shops because they had been known to pass morphine and cocaine to prisoners. A revenue of $250 a month is secured by charging visitors 25 cents apiece to visit the prison, he said.

Chairman Philbrick of the probers said today the probe would be completed late tonight or Thursday. A decision will not be rendered for several weeks, he thought.

THE IDLER

JUVENILE Officer Barrett is of the opinion that boys started the fire that caused so much excitement in the Holland block last Saturday afternoon. He is making an investigation along this line. Several boys are said to have confessed their part in the affair.

Police were informed this morning of the robbery last night of the office of P. D. Davis, at 433 Holland block. It is believed that entrance to the office was gained by use of a duplicate key. Eighteen dollars in currency and silver was taken from a desk.

A Hudson machine belonging to Minor Evans was stolen from West High street last night. A description of the missing automobile was furnished police, but so far no trace of the missing property has been found.

OHIO'S BEST PRODUCT.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—There are 1,305,392 children in Ohio between 6 and 21 years of age, according to an announcement made today by State Superintendent of Public Instruction Pearson. Last year's school enumeration showed 1,298,656 children. This year there are 667,577 boys as against 663,880 last year and 637,815 girls as against 632,876 a year ago. Last year's school enrollment totaled more than 9,000,000. Figures on this year's enrollment are not available.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—William J. Calhoun, former ambassador to China and a hoodlum of the late President McKinley, is dead at his home in Astor street today. Mr. Calhoun's last public appearance was during the republican convention here when he placed in nomination Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman. He became ill shortly after, suffering a stroke of paralysis on July 4 from which he never fully recovered. He was 68 years old.

PRESIDENT WILSON PLANS SPEAKING TOUR IN OCTOBER

SHADOW LAWN, Long Branch, N. J., Sept. 20.—Despite qualified denials, President Wilson has decided to speak in the west and even in parts of the east in the interest of his candidacy for re-election. The speaking tour will begin early in October and will continue intermittently until election day.

Vance C. McCormick, democratic national chairman, before leaving here for New York early today, indicated that he had urged the president to accept "invitations of a non-partisan character" to speak. He reiterated the denials that a stumping tour of the west by Mr. Wilson was on the program. He admitted that he detailed fully to the president political conditions in the west as gleaned by him on his recent trip to Indianapolis and Chicago.

"The only definite date so far fixed, for Mr. Wilson to speak is on Sept. 25 at Baltimore before the National Grain Dealers' association," McCormick said. "Beyond that I can say nothing except that he will accept a few invitations. He will hardly go as far as the Pacific coast."

It is the conclusion of the Wilson managers that Mexico, the eight hour law and the tariff are the issue that must be most firmly met by the administration supporters. They believe that the steady hammering of Charles E. Hughes on the eight-hour law will have its effect unless big backfires are started. The joint commission at New London, they hope, will take the sting out of the Mexican situation.

If President Wilson is worried over the political outlook, he does not betray his feelings.

McCormick left here at 8 o'clock for New York. He said he would return next Tuesday.

The New York primary result, so far as incomplete figures show, McCormick said, indicate a substantial progressive vote for democratic candidates.

"I would not attempt to interpret the result, though, until I get complete returns," McCormick said. "I think the Hughes attack on the eight-hour law will collapse when the facts are known. We intend to give all the facts and there will be a grateful nation when the people understand the situation."

"It is probable that the president will write a few letters on various subjects to fix his position definitely, but there positively will be no campaign tour by Mr. Wilson."

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN.

Editor, Times-Democrat: In this materialistic age there is quite a danger that we will lose sight of men. In this age where there is a tendency for men to make a burying ground of his business and cover up his conscience and character with capital, and allow his finer parts to be trampled in the earth by the hoofs and wheels of traffic, he needs some one to remind him that he has a body, a mind and a soul that needs attention. Any institution that ministers to the whole man is a benefactor to the community such I believe is the Y. M. C. A. in our city. It helps to make a man a square man which means completeness, or wholeness. Emerson speaks of such a man as one who "Stands four-square to every wind that blows." Such a man faces his task with a full side to every side; confronts life squarely from every point of the compass. No man can be a square man without the help of his fellows for life is an up-hill journey and it does the heart good to have somebody "call back" and cheerfully beckon us on up the hill. We are all climbers together and we must help one another if we are to fulfill the law of "the Master of all good workmen."

There has been inaugurated in our local Y. M. C. A. a campaign for new members. True we are to have a new building and the efforts put forth for that were crowned with great success but a still greater work is to get new members lined up to enjoy the benefits of this new character building factory. He who gave money to make this new building possible did well but he who gives his time to get men in contact with its ministry does better, and any man who gives his name to any member of one of these teams to join this institution will do the best of all and I am sure that never for a moment will such a man regret the time when he threw himself into this school of training for the whole man. We trust there will be a generous support of this movement on the part of the citizens of Lima and a ready response to these workers who go out pointing to the gymnasium, the swimming pool, the reading room and the classes saying, "Come thou with us and we will go thee good!"

STES FOR DIVORCE.

Mrs. Mary Lang, waitress at the Hotel Norval, filed suit for divorce this afternoon from her husband, Frank L. Lang, whose whereabouts are unknown. Cruelty, gross neglect of duty and drunkenness are the charges made in the petition. She asks for the custody of their child, Ermina, six years old.

WOMEN ARRESTED MONDAY

Sheriff Sherman E. Eley and his force of deputies are a happy lot today. The four foreign-born women arrested Monday and turned over to the sheriff yesterday because they were unable to pay fines assessed by Justice Hamilton on the charge of stealing coal from the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad company, have been dismissed, the money for the fines being provided.

The women are said to have given the names of Mary Capone, Alfonso Garselli and Giuseppe Progenetti. One refused to tell her name or state if she had a husband or where he might be.

They couldn't leave their children, so Sheriff Eley had the task of caring for the offspring. And with them into the detention room in the court house went 15 children, when their mothers were turned over to the sheriff.

Five of these children were taken in for sympathy. They are said to not have belonged to any one of the women, but were used to secure the sympathy of officers in releasing the women. Ten of the children belonged to the women. They averaged in age from a mere babe to a good-sized boy.

Two of the women were let out this morning and with them went their children. The other two will likely be released this afternoon. Probation Officer Barrett said it was a problem to deal with the mothers and children, because they could not converse in English. It was another problem, too, for the sheriff to provide food for such a company of hungry youngsters, so large had his official family grown in one day.

They were arrested by the detective employed by the railroad and were fined $5 and costs.

LANSING DEMANDS RELEASE OF JEWS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Secretary of State Lansing today instructed Ambassador Elkus in Constantinople and Secretary Bliss of the American embassy in Paris to insist upon quick replies to the United States request for permission to bring wives and children of 65 Jewish naturalized Americans, from Palestine on the United States cruiser Des Moines. The instructions followed advice to the navy department, that the Des Moines with Armenian and Syrian relief supplies on board, would arrive at Alexandria, Egypt, Sept. 25.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

MOUNT VERNON, O., Sept. 20.—The seven-months old infant of Charles Vaughan, residing near here was burned to death this morning. A milkman passing the house, saw smoke, rushed in and carried the child out. The mother was doing chores some distance from the house and no explanation of the origin of the fire can be made.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., Sept. 20.—Andrew J. Batten, 72 years old, who lived above his store at Piekerville town, was found dead in bed today in his lodging apartments. He was found machines which Batten had designed in an effort to solve this mystery of perpetual motion.

GERMAN FURNITURE PRICES RISE 40 PER CENT

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—Despite Germany has immense forests, furniture prices have increased from 40 to 50 per cent since the beginning of the war. The rise is caused by the scarcity of labor and the increase of wages made necessary by the high cost of living.

J. E. Russell's Record In Congress Shows His Tendency to Side-Step

(Continued from Page 1.) That was more probably a vote to hurry up the vote on the bill it may have been Russell's idea to register his vote as non-committal.

On the motion to expunge alleged improper remarks of Republican Floor Leader James R. Mann from the Congressional Record, he voted "No."

On recommending the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, he voted "no."

On the Gardiner amendment to the national defense bill, furloughing enlisted men into the regular army reserve, he voted "yes."

On the McKenzie amendment, eliminating the nitrogen plant from the defense bill, Russell voted "yes."

On special order for the immigration bill, as well as on the passage of the bill, he voted "yes." The bill provided much tighter laws regarding the admission of aliens. This is the stiff "literacy test" vetoed not only by Wilson, but also by Taft.

On the river and harbors bill for federal improvements, he voted "no."

On the passage of the shipping board bill, a step toward merchant marine, he voted "no."

On the Wood amendment, striking from the emergency revenue bill the special tax on capital stock of banks, he voted "yes." Russell is a director of the First National Bank Exchange, of Sidney.

On the "war revenue" bill, he voted "no."

On the conference report of the rivers and harbors bill, also "no."

On the Howard amendment to the postal savings bank law, providing that depositors may deposit unlimited amounts in postal savings banks, Russell voted "no." As stated above, Russell is a bank director.

Mayor Bailis H. Simpson laid up treasures in heaven last night in an address before the Chamber of Commerce smoker in honor of the new business men of Lima. In discussing various business matters Hinzoner got the following utterance out of his system:

"I am not in sympathy with this eight-hour day law. It should not be countenanced and all you business men know that."

Wait until kails starts out around the Lima locomotive works, the motor truck plants, the railroads and the rest of the factories next year to corral the labor vote. It will be as easy as finding snakes in Ireland, snuffing stoves on the Mexican border or getting a German-American alliance convention to slug the "Marshallists."

SIXTY MEN FULL OF ENTHUSIASM IN Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN

Movement Launched at Big Rally to Last All Week.

Sixty enthusiastic men met at the Y. M. C. A. last night at supper at the launching of the campaign for the beginning of the fall work of the association. If the enthusiasm is any indication of success, the Lima association will have a big bunch of new members before Saturday night. The goal that has been set is three hundred members. This does not mean three hundred new members, but a total of three hundred counting new members and those who renew their memberships.

Promptly at 6:30 the men were called to supper and after partaking of a fine spread prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the association, Mr. Elmer McClain, chairman of the campaign, who acted as toastmaster of the occasion, set forth to the men in a short but enthusiastic address the purpose for which the men had gathered together. He told the men that they were called together not for the purpose of sharing a burden, but of taking part in one of the greatest privileges of the association—that of doing some definite work towards the extension of the association's influence and benefitting a large number of other young men. He pointed out that the strong men of the city are those who are engaged in work of this kind and that what a man gets out of the association is exactly in proportion to what he puts in.

Jimmie Fletcher, one of the old time members of the Y. M. C. A., but now located in New York in the employ of the Standard Oil company, was present and spoke feelingly in regard to what the Y. M. C. A. has meant to him in the great metropolis. He is making his home at the Bronx Y. M. C. A. and stated that he never realized what the association was to young men until he left the city and was thrown upon his own resources; that to anyone in a strange city it was a God-send and to every fellow in his own city it should be the center for his recreational and social life.

Chairman McClain called upon each of the captains and they all responded briefly but enthusiastically that they were in the campaign to win. Dr. Herr stated that he was more interested in the Young Men's Christian association than any other institution in the city, save the city hospital, but while he was extremely busy he was going to take some time to put this campaign through successfully. A strong element in the workers present was two streams of high school boys, captain by Vernon Verbrake in a Cadillac and "Vern" Verbrake in a Cadillac and "Vern" Verbrake in a Cadillac. These young men stated that the field to get fellows for the Y. M. C. A. was among the high school boys and while they were young in the work, they were going to make the other hump. The high school boys have given a splendid account of themselves in every effort they have undertaken and unless they meet with some serious accident, they are going to win in this race.

The city has been divided into ten sections and each of the ten teams will work in these sections for the first two days, after which the restrictions are off and they will work everywhere. The following is the division:

Division A—All South of High St. Chalmers, Verbrake—Elm to Vine, west of Main and high school. Cadillac, Stewart—Sugar alley to Elm, West of Main. Garford, Cheroweth—Sugar alley to Elm, east of Main. Maxwell, Wells—Elm to Vine, east of Main, including Deisel-Werner factory. Buick, Mackenzie—All south of Vine.

Division B—North of High.

Packard, Michael—Sugar alley to North, West of Main street. Paige, Chaney—North to Penn. tracks, west of Main. to North, east of Main. Gramm-Bernstein, Botkins—North to Penn. tracks, east of Main. Ford, Bowsher—All north of Penn. tracks.

Every evening this week the workers will meet at luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. promptly at 6:30 to report on the progress of the day's work, the meeting will be dismissed at 7:30 so the men will have the evening to work.

Those who are thinking of joining the association this fall should do so at once as the special rates are good only until closing hour Saturday night. It should be borne in mind that all memberships that are in force when the present building is vacated will receive the unexpired time in the new building. When it is understood that the membership rates in the new building will be much higher than in the old, men who now join will be ahead both in privilege and money.

DEEP MYSTERY OF STRAY PETTICOAT QUICKLY SOLVED

Visions of suicide, murder and criminal assault were pictured by police this morning when a call was received from a resident in the vicinity of the Pierce street bridge informing officials that a petticoat was found hanging on the rail of the structure.

Neighbors in the vicinity of the bridge on hearing of the find made a thorough search of the banks of the river, expecting to find the body of a drowned woman.

However, their worry was put to an end when the owner of a dry cleaning establishment nearby stated that it had probably come from his place of business.

HUGHES AND THE FARMER
It is logical to anticipate a lifting of eye-brows by progressive American farmers when their attention is drawn to the vetoes of important agricultural appropriations in the general supply bill of New York by Charles Evans Hughes, June 18, 1910, when the present Republican nominee for president was governor.
Farmers will be interested to observe that by his vetoes Hughes knocked out $11,000 for investigation and extermination of contagious diseases of plants and San Jose scale and other dangerous insect pests; $6,000 for Farmers' Institute work; $700 for investigation of insecticides and fungicides; $2,500 for a specialist to fight insect pests; $8,000 for dissemination of information concerning clean farms in New York; $2,000 for collecting and disseminating information relative to agricultural labor within the state; $5,000 for improving the New York State College of Agriculture; $10,000 for completing enlargement of the State Veterinary College; $5,000 for the maintenance of the department of Veterinary Science in the State University; and $250 designed to make up a deficiency in the salary of the commissioner of agriculture.
This is interesting when it is observed that on June 25, 1910, just one week later, Hughes approved a bill increasing the salaries of a group of state officers, the lowest salary of whom was already $1,000 a year. The salary of the attorney general was increased from $5,000 to $10,000 (doubled); that of the state engineer and surveyor from $5,000 to $8,000; that of the comptroller from $6,000 to $8,500; that of the state treasurer from $5,000 to $6,000; and that of the secretary of state from $5,000 to $6,000 with the comment that "the salaries of these state officers have been altogether too low."
After cogitating on Hughes' method of "selection" in the use of public money—vetoes, practical agricultural appropriations and increasing already large salaries of

Sending a Poor Girl to An Expensive School May Ruin Her Life
Dorothy Dix Condemns the Folly of Parents Who Skimp Themselves to Give Their Daughters a Taste for Luxuries They Can Never Afford.

By Dorothy Dix.
A WOMAN in very moderate and unassuming circumstances said to me the other day:
"We are going to send Mamie off to Miss Blank's school this year. It is frightfully expensive and costs more than we really can afford. But it's very fashionable, and the girls are thrown with girls who belong to the real society set, so I felt that we should make the sacrifice."
"Poor, silly mother!" I thought, unobtrusively. Mamie, who is to be the victim of the greatest educational crash in the world—that of having taste, habits and aspirations cultivated in her that she will never have the means to gratify.
Surely of all sad sights no spectacle is more pathetic than that of poor but ambitiously ambitious parents who work themselves to death and deny themselves every comfort in order to "send their daughters" to boarding schools, off to fashionable schools.
There the Poor Girl Learns False Values That Make Her Life a Burden.
There the girl without money is thrown with the girl who has money to burn. There the impecunious maid, whose lot it is to walk through life, learns that it is better to have been born dead than not to have been born to a twelve-cylinder limousine. There the girl of lowly rank learns that society is the ultimate end of human ambition, and that the chief object of life is to wear exclusive Paris importations and out-dress one's neighbor.
Perhaps that is all very well for Little Miss Millionaire, to whom society is going to be a career and a business. It is doubtless important that she should spend much time in learning the art of dinner giving and learn how to device amusements that will keep overfed, blasé guests from yawning in her face. But no education could be more demoralizing than this to a poor girl.
It teaches the poor girl to look with contempt upon the plainness of her own home, and to despise her hard-worked parents. More than that, she must be continually mortified either by the simplicity of her clothes or else by her extravagance in trying to keep up with her schoolmates and thus adding fresh burdens and more hardships on her mother and father.
She Must Be Either a Parasite on the Rich, or Be Lonely in Her Poverty.
She must either withdraw from the camaraderie of school life and seem niggardly and mean by not playing her part in school affairs, or else she becomes a parasite and a dead beat by participating in pleasures for which some one else pays.
The inevitable result of such traditions. Therefore, send your daughter to a school that will educate her to be a happy, contented woman, instead of a disappointed, disgruntled one.

CERTAIN STREETS IN VENICE
The Piazza of St. Mark's is an eminently conventional place to start seeing Venice. It has been snapshotted, sketched, chacoaled, done in oils and water-colors by the itinerant amateurs of every nation. Visitors less artistically gifted walk around the Piazza viewing the evolutions of the widely advertised pigeons of St. Mark's, or sit under the arcades that fringe the square, discussing beverages whose colors shame the palettes of the artists. The Piazza is the gathering place of visitors in Venice, and the gathering place of the native as well. This combination of attractions is possible because the Italians are the self-conscious race and do not mind being stared at by the tourists from Lincolnshire and Dakota.
The Venetian public strolls around the Piazza as it has strolled for centuries slow and colorful and liberal of gesture. Occasionally a couple pause to argue some moot point out at leisure, but no couple has ever been known to hurry. Shawled proletariats, snugly buttoned bourgeois, thin-nosed aristocrats, they pace slowly on the round, as though the evening stroll, through centuries of usage, had taken on the character of a ceremonial. Night falls, the pigeons perch among the carvings of the cathedral and go to sleep, but the human throng only thickens.
To get out of the Piazza you take the great street called the Merceria, where Venice does its trading. Here are ranged the fashionable shops, and farther on, after the Merceria has wound away from the Piazza, the smaller stalls where all manner of useless things are sold for next to nothing. The Merceria finally reaches the Rialto, by whose stairs you can buy little cups of bad coffee and a drink of water from a copper pot. The sanitary drinking cup has not yet penetrated to Venice.
By way of contrast, look at another street in another quarter—the Via Garibaldi where some of the common people live. Here are old, faded houses that have seen better days, dirt and sunlight and odors, and over all an atmosphere of indolent content. Sailors pass, fishermen, soldiers, children towing their small brothers with one backward-dragged hand. People sleep in the sun, undisturbed by neighboring squabbles. The gods cause all these to attire themselves in glowing reds, blues and yellows, so that whatever the so-

'LONELY SOLDIERS' DENIED THE JOY OF LOVE NOTES

Fair Correspondents May be German Spies, is Government's Fear.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The official press bureau has announced that, in future, no newspaper shall print advertisements of "lonely soldiers," or love-lorn ladies who wish to correspond with them.

The reason is the fear that numerous women, even though they are of British birth, are being employed by the German government to correspond with "lonely soldiers" and under the guise of courtship lay themselves out to "obtain information calculated to be of use to the enemy."

The idea of forming guilds of lettered women to correspond with "lonely soldiers at the front," originated in the brain of Lord Northcliffe. His principal papers, the Times, the Daily Mail and the Evening News, boomed the idea and "correspondence guilds" spread with the rapidity of wildfire all over Great Britain. The idea has long been popular in France.

Titled ladies and clergymen's wives, religious spinsters and sentimental servant girls combined to write "cheering letters from home" to the lonely fighting men in the trenches. Naturally enough, a large proportion of the one million three hundred thousand women of marriageable age in Britain saw through the medium of letter-writing an opportunity of catching a "Tommy" for a husband directly the war was over.

Photographs were exchanged and it is no exaggeration to state that thousands of engagements have resulted through lonely soldiers and lonely girls becoming known to each other in this manner. The leading papers devoted columns to this craze and no one doubts the good intentions and philanthropic motives of its originators.

Other papers of large circulation, seeing what an excellent thing the "lonely soldier" correspondence craze was to boost sales, took up the idea and announced that they would accept advertisements from friendless Tommies. They were soon snowed under by the rush of advertisers in the British army, who desired letters and wives.

Here are some typical advertisements of the description the Press bureau has just prohibited. They are taken from London Life, which has a very large circulation among soldiers, factory girls and servants. A page was devoted to these advertisements under the heading of "Introductions." A charge of 62 cents is made for each insertion and all answers received were forwarded to the advertiser.

"Friedless soldier would like some nice girl to write to him. Being without friends feels awfully lonely, and would much appreciate cheerful letters. (Box A.99)."

"Young N. C. O. (19) well educated, would like to meet pretty, cheerful girl: medium height, good figure; one fond of fun and safety. London or Kent View to matrimony. Enclose photo to Sergeant, Box A100."

"Young naval mechanic wishes to correspond with young lady from 18 to 22 years of age. Am prepared to exchange photos. Complexion fair for preference. View to matrimony. (Box A102)."

On an average between two and three thousand answers were received by each of the above and hundreds of other similar advertisements. This seems to show that the British Isles are happy hunting grounds for men on matrimony bent. Of course, not all the answers are serious. Many were written in sport, but a very large number express pathetic affection for the "dream man" the writers have never seen.

Many of the soldiers were doubtless as sentimental and lovesick as their fair correspondents, so it is quite conceivable that women in the pay of the German government may have been obtaining valuable information to promote the destruction of the simple-minded soldiers under the guise of love and courtship. Hence the action of the Press bureau.

Chronic Dysentery.
"An old gentleman of this town who was almost at the point of death with chronic dysentery, some time ago had given up all hope of recovery was induced to try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. One dose stopped the discharge, and after taking a few more doses he was completely cured," writes J. L. Baer, West Manchester, Pa. "Many residents of Baer's Station can testify to the truth of the above and were aware of the old gentleman's condition." Obtainable everywhere. mo-wel-ri

ROCKFELLERS, JOHN AND FRANK, STILL NOT RECONCILED

CLEVELAND, Sept. 20.—William Rockefeller has gone back to New York after a visit here with his two brothers, John D., and Frank, without having accomplished the purpose for which he is believed to have made the trip.

The two Cleveland Rockefellers, John and Frank, have not spoken for 18 years. A business deal is said to have caused their estrangement. William, 75, is said by friends here to have been anxious to bring about a reconciliation between John, 77, and Frank, 70.

That his purpose was not accomplished was emphasized today by the younger brother, who said: "In 1898 John and I had a row over business. I said at that time, 'I'm through' and I meant it. I am through. There is not the slightest possibility of a reconciliation."

While William was in Cleveland he and his wife motored from John D.'s home to that of Frank. It is thought that this trip was made with a view to arrange a meeting of the two brothers, but Frank was not at home. It is not known whether John D. would be willing to make up.

Frank is retired from active business. He works alone in a little downtown office and keeps pretty much to himself.

ROBBERS BANDS AGAIN BEGIN RAIDS IN POLAND.

WARSAW, Sept. 20.—The bands of murderers and robbers which were suppressed a year ago are again becoming active in Poland. Recently seven masked and heavily armed men surrounded the house of the commander of the civil guard of Rybie near Raszyn, a German by the name of Karl Hoffmann, and demanded admittance.

The militia commander instead of opening the door fled to the roof with his son, a boy of 17 years, and prepared to defend himself, but the robbers discovered him before he was ready to fire and a fusillade drove him back into the house, where three of the bandits who had smashed in the door hacked him to pieces with knives. His son was badly wounded.

The murderers carried off all valuables they found in the house and disappeared before the police and a small detachment of German soldiers stationed in the neighborhood arrived. A systematic hunt for the bandits has been organized, but so far they have eluded capture.

MEXICO CELEBRATES ITS LIBERTY DAY

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—Throughout the republic of Mexico last Saturday people celebrated an event that in a historical nature is likened to the Fourth of July in the United States, the occasion being the 100th anniversary of that memorable September 16, 1810, when the immortal patriot of Mexico, the beloved Father Miguel Hidalgo, parish priest of the little town of Dolores, a little "pueblo" of Guanajuato, rang the bell of the little church and proclaimed the independence of Mexico from the tyrannical Spanish domination.

Captured by the Spanish a few months later, Father Hidalgo was publicly executed in Chihuahua, but the spirit of the revolution he had aroused was triumphant and in 1821, 11 years later, the Spanish crown acknowledged that Mexico was a free and sovereign state and the yoke which Cortez and his followers placed upon the shoulders of the Aztecs three hundred years before was thrown off forever.

With appropriate eclat and ostentatious ceremony Mexico annually celebrated the achievement of the patriot Hidalgo, but during the past three years, on account of the unsettled conditions prevailing throughout the republic the celebration of Mexican Independence Day has been restricted to only moderate ceremonies—principally speech-making, Mexican fairs and minor modes of celebration.

After a lapse of several years

Mexico proposes to go back to the former customs this year and celebrate Independence Day in a manner becoming the importance of the occasion. First Chief Carranza, feeling that an air of condence and peace once more pervades the republic and that the Mexican people will acquit themselves nobly on the occasion, has given his approval to the celebration of "El 16 de Septiembre" on a most elaborate scale in all the cities of the republic, and in consequence big programs have been laid out for celebrations in all the important cities of Mexico.

The celebrations will be most spectacular and participated in by thousands of people, including military and civic organizations, patriotic societies, school societies, etc., while tonight there will be band concerts and grand "jamsicas" (Mexican fairs) on the plazas, speech-making, bull fights, and grand balls.

Instructions have been given to the Carranza soldiery throughout Mexico to lend their support toward making the "16 de Septiembre" celebration all that it should be, but at the same time give attention to the fact that they will be held responsible for any overt act committed against Americans or other foreigners and that no anti-American demonstration will be allowed.

It was on this same occasion, the 16th of September of last year, that the Mexican faction inimical to the United States attempted to put into execution the "Plan of San Diego" which sought to incite the people of Mexico against the United States and urge them to an uprising all along the border. The timely interference of American troops and the capture of the principal agitators of the plan resulted in the frustration of the scheme.

This year, however, the better Mexican people are courting the friendship and good offices of the American people.

SOUTHERN LABOR CONGRESS CONVENES AT MEMPHIS.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 20.—More than a thousand delegates, representing almost every craft in the 14 southern states, were in attendance today when the Southern Labor congress convened. The sessions will continue until September 24. Jerome Jones, of Atlanta, Ga., president of the Southern Labor congress is presiding.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, are among the labor leaders who have been invited to make addresses during the convention.

The object of the convention is to discuss ways and means of bringing about better labor conditions in the south and of promoting more cordial relations between capital and labor. One of the big problems in the south confronting organized labor is the negro. The negro does not take kindly to union affiliation and there are few southern labor organizations that are ready to admit the negro into their ranks.

It is expected that during the convention convict labor in the several states will be discussed and it is not improbable that some steps will be taken looking to securing legislation in the southern states that will eliminate convict labor from competition with free labor.

NEW YORK TEACHERS WOULD ALTER DIXIE

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—New York high school teachers have appointed a committee which will ask music publishers and others to eliminate negro dialect and make various other changes in songs.

In "The Star Spangled Banner," "perilous fight" is to be changed to "clouds of the fight." If the teachers have their way, and the uniform key will be changed from B flat to A flat to make the singing easier for the average voice.

In "Dixie" "de" will be changed to "the" and "nebbber" to "never." The teachers say it is difficult to teach pure English in the school, with the number of children of foreign parents growing, and negro dialect confuses the little ones.

Today the Red Sox have a full game lead on the Tigers and a game and a half on the White Sox. The Dodgers are two games ahead of the Phillies and 2 1-2 games ahead of the Braves.

THE COWARD

"I DON'T KNOW why people don't like me," said an acquaintance the other day. "I try so hard to be nice to everybody, and never to do anything they won't like, but some way I am not popular, and I want to be, so badly."

"Ah, no," I sighed, "who of us is there that have not the same longing? But, my dear, the surest way to lose popularity is to seek it. And then after all what is it? This sought-after place in society and the hearts of many, if not all, of our associates? How much satisfaction do we gain from the fruits of our labors in that direction?"

"Well," she answered, "it keeps one over on the alert for the little things. One does not do lots of things, for fear of public opinion."

"I am sorry," you think they say, "I replied, 'For they who seek popularity, practicing the suppression of natural good instincts, are moral cowards, who are afraid of their own actions, thoughts and mind. Afraid because they might get, as you think, contrary to the convictions of the great, "they."

And so are most of us, brave in the face of material danger, but mortally afraid to stand up in the face of public disapproval. And the person who seeks the popularity of his fellows is a coward because he fears to go his own way lest he incur the condemnation of "they." There are more cowards made to the minute beneath the fear of the "they" sword, than beneath the fire of shot and shell of modern warfare.

Somewhere I read, but I don't remember who said it, "courage consists in not being afraid of one's mind and other persons' minds." And I really believe it. Only today I read a story, which sounded like fiction, about a British soldier who early in the war had been court-martialed, but who, undaunted and unafraid, enlisted in the foreign legion of France and is now wearing three medals of honor for bravery and is reinstated in his old regiment. So great was his courage that he didn't trouble to change his name when he enlisted in the foreign legion. What was the courage of facing the raucous of the enemy, compared to the courage of rising above the "they" says?"

DRAUGHTS AND CLOSED DOORS CAUSE COLDS.

The first chill winds of fall and the closing of doors and windows will bring a crop of colds. For draughts, overheated, unventilated rooms, too much clothing or undue exposure, the result of too little clothing, are the chief causes of colds. If you are so fearful of draughts that you shut yourself up in a hot, stuffy room you are pretty certain to catch cold when you go out into the open air. You are so lowering your system's power of resistance that the alert germs get you without any trouble. The open window, which does not create a draught, is the secret of proper precautions against colds. Never stay in a close room. But never so ventilate a room that you create a draught where you are sitting. Regulate your clothing if you would avoid colds. On mild days, even if the season be late, reduce your clothing. When the real cold weather comes, increase it. When you leave a heated room to go into the open air, protect your body by additional clothing. Let your clothing be loose and of a texture that will freely admit of a circulation of air about your body at all times. About the best prescription for the prevention of colds is frequent doses of air and water. Live in the open air as much as possible and keep your body clear and toned up by frequent bathing and you will not be likely to "catch" cold.

Comparatively few colds lead to consumption. But, as every cold weakens the system and makes the person more liable to other diseases, and particularly to consumption, every cold should be closely watched.

THE FAUROT'S PICTURES.

"The Honorable Friend," the new Paramount picture at the Faurot, is here to further the prestige of that remarkable Japanese actor Sessue Hayakawa as well as to delight the thousands of admirers of the Lasky school of motion photography. Hayakawa and his pretty little wife, Tsuru Aoki, do some of the best work that they have yet given the screen and Mr. Lasky shows us a production of artistic charm and great photographic beauty. The supporting cast give clever performances. Raymond Hatton gives a fine characterization as a Japanese curio dealer, Billy Elmer as Policeman Murphy, is excellent and G. Kino is impressive as the Japanese father. "The Honorable Friend" is accompanied by Burton Holmes' "Climbing the Austrian Alps" and a new edition of the A.P. News. Last times tonight.

"THE GARDEN OF ALLAH."

Never before has been transplanted to a playhouse a scene so rich, so sumptuous, so wonderful a stretch of land as the man-made oasis—Count Antonio's garden—which will be shown to the Faurot next Saturday afternoon and night. Here nature will be seen tamed to the use and command of man. And in the next scene of this drama nature seems wild and beyond the power of man to subdue—the sandstorm in the Great Sahara. The imaginative Mohammedans with their simple creed, "There is no God but God and Mohammed is his prophet—I proclaim it," call the Sahara the "Garden of Allah."

Every woman should see this great picture.

Howard Gould, who plays Count Antonio, in "The Garden of Allah."

They believe it is possible for man to get close to God there. Seats are now on sale for both performances.

Today affords the last opportunity to see that wonderful motion picture feature "Where Are My Children," one of the greatest moral lessons ever taught by the use of the screen. It is not a sensational picture, but a lesson of life from start to finish. Three performances closes the engagement at the Orpheum, a matinee at 2:30 and two performances tonight at 7:30 and 9.

For the last three days of this week starting with a matinee Thursday afternoon at 2:30 a very high class vaudeville program has been booked. Almont, Dumont and Gee, comedy, instrumental, singing and talking, introducing Mr. Almont's own unique and melodious invention, the septophone, each tone coming from a different bell; also his ebony trumpet, Simmons and Simmons in a singing and talking oddity. The Lanes in a comedy bar act. Neal, Segal and Franklin in a classy singing, talking and dancing novelty, Maxie Bros. and Bobbie, a great and laughable comedy acrobatic act, complete a wonderful five act vaudeville program.

AT THE ROYAL.

In response to the request of the many who were not successful in securing admission at the Royal yesterday and Monday in order to see the great New York sensation, "Race Suicide," the management has been able to secure an additional day's booking on this feature today only. This will positively be the last day insofar as it plays one of the Cleveland houses tomorrow, so those who wish to see this should not fail to attend today. This treats one of the greatest problems of the day—whether a woman is treated with as much consideration when she is surrounded by children as though the reverse were the case. The treatment of this sex problem is both skillful and careful and insofar as it reveals conditions of not only the present age, but that of both the prehistoric and the middle ages, it proves to be doubly interesting.

THE STRAND.

At the Strand today will be a splendid assortment of both motion picture, and vaudeville. Frederick Herrick is the man who has the much heralded pinhead upon which is engraved the Lord's Prayer, consisting of eighty words. Besides this Princess Waukena gives both singing and dancing sketches, while Chief's Wolf and Red Dog give the dances of their respective tribes, Comanche and Sioux. Cowboy Fred Herrick gives a lecture on "The West Southwest" and the entertainment is ended with motion pictures of the wild west as it was.

LEE BEN WILL BE RETURNED TO CHINA

Laundryman, Taken in Recent Dope Raid, Found Guilty.

Lee Ben, Chinese laundryman of this city, who was tried in federal court yesterday on a charge of having habit-forming drugs in his possession, was found guilty at the hearing held at Toledo, and was ordered deported by Judge Killits. He will be sent back to China immediately.

Ben was arrested twice on a charge of violating the Harrison law. One the first occasion he was convicted and paroled on good behavior. Last spring he broke his parole when plainclothesmen arrested him as he was about to enter an East Wayne street house. Several packages which he attempted to throw away contained drugs.

Carl Seibold, who has been a prisoner at the county jail for some time on the same charge, was taken to Toledo yesterday to testify against the Chinaman. He, however, was not called to the stand. Chief McKinney, Captain Grant, Roush, Billstein, Crisberry and McCoy, all members of the Lima police department, were present at the trial.

ANNUAL SESSION OF C. OF C. HELD

More Than 100 Attend Good Fellowship Meet Last Night.

Co-operation was the keynote of the smoker and reception held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce last night. More than 100 attended the get-together meeting and listened to the addresses and extemporaneous speeches which were directed toward the establishment of a permanent good fellowship and better feeling among citizens of Lima.

The assembly room was gaily decorated for the occasion. Palms and plants screened Holmes' string quartette, and smokes and refreshments were served from a booth in one corner of the room.

President Hughes of the organization presided during the festivities and speech making. Remarks of all speakers were directed toward the betterment of the city, financially and morally.

Talks made by recent arrivals from New York and Philadelphia who are now connected with some of the largest concerns in the city were loudly applauded, as each in turn painted in glowing terms the hearty spirit of welcome extended by business men of Lima.

Speeches were made by the following: Walter B. Ritchie, Kent Hughes, Gus Kalb, J. W. Halphill, R. B. Dunn, Arthur W. Wheatley, O. J. Smith, B. F. Welty, John Williams, Peter Steiner and Mayor Simpson.

PETROGRAD ADDS TO ITS POPULATION IN ALARMING DEGREE

Many Crippled Heroes Beg in Streets and Die of Hunger.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.—"Texas is some state!" Fortunately for Texas this is now the unanimous verdict that comes from the militia stationed on her border. In the beginning it looked as if Texas were not going to please them. The men were tired from their long journey and many had left a cool country to take up active residence in a climate where the summer temperature varies only among the nineties. To the stranger it seems as if all the dust in the world has been gathered up and deposited on the south Texas roads, and this feature proved vastly irritating to the men while marching. Altogether, Texas was made to feel that she was considerable of a disappointment.

But Texas did not pretend to notice it. She went about her languid way, and met the men in the trains with sandwiches and roast chicken and postcards already stamped to be mailed home to their families and friends. She conducted the men amidst admiring processions to the camp sites and drew out a few apologies for local conditions. This was the beginning of her hospitality campaign which has lasted ever since and which has made every man feel at home in Texas.

Then there was a long period of quiet and the men again became restless. Many had left their homes and families, and a great majority had left important positions to take a long journey south to a hot arid climate ostensibly to fight the Mexicans, but the Mexicans did not seem inclined to fight. The situation had become flat. Then a course of war lectures began which seized upon the men's imaginations. The first of them dealt with the question which had been asked again and again. Why are we here? The officer spoke to them frankly and at length, applauding them for their action in joining a national guard in the first place; in coming to the border, in the second place, and in accepting conditions as they were, with a high patriotism which sacrificed personal interests to the greater interest of the nation. Then he pointed out that the Mexican situation was not any safer than it ever had been. Conditions on the other side were worse, with Villa still at large, possibly already instigating another raid. The prestige of the country was suffering, he said, and the American public growing restive, so that a move might be forced at any time. "At any rate, whether needed in Mexico or not, the training of this large force of men is going to be a fine thing for the country—is, in fact, the greatest step which has yet been taken in the preparedness program," he concluded.

Shortly after this talk the president's order was received mustering out of the national guard on the border all organizations of university students in order that they might return in time for the opening of their classes. Much to everybody's amazement, the students objected to being mustered. They promptly wrote the president a note in which they thanked him for his consideration, but stated that they felt as much responsibility for the safety of their country as did any other body of militia. Whether this was due to the lecture of the officer or the increasing hospitality of the Texans has not yet been proved, but certain it is that not nearly so much talk is heard about scorpions and much more concerning dances at the country club and the Brownsville senoritas.

Meanwhile, the camp has become somewhat in the nature of a campus. Glee clubs have been organized among the different troops and nightly concerts are held before the bugle note is sounded. Polo matches are arranged and played before an admiring Texas audience, and base ball clubs have been formed among the regiments. Every military town along the border now has a base ball diamond. At Brownsville the Y. M. C. A. has established a headquarters for the militia, with a moving picture projecting machine, a victrola, piano and games for the men, as well as magazines, free stationery and ice water. Two nights a week the building is turned over to the troops for amateur performances, one night devoted to musical numbers and the other to just "stunts." Fifty Y. M. C. A. buildings on this order are now in process of construction throughout the militia towns on the border.

By way of amusement the Illinois troops at Brownsville started publishing their own weekly newspaper, containing the news of all the regiments on the border. The sheet has recently attracted the attention of the New York Times which has given it an established reputation. The first issue made its appearance about six weeks ago and really startled the regiment by its newspaper technique and clever composition. It is a four-page paper with a live sporting page, a list of cryptic editorials and an accomplished reporter by the name of "Harold Harp," Intrepid Staff Correspondent. It carries a weekly cartoon in the prescribed daily newspaper fashion which is the product of a young corporal in the militia. In the issue of August 5, there was a particularly clever one entitled "Anywhere in Europe." It showed a European soldier with a broken arm, a shattered leg and a bandaged head reading the big headlines of an American newspaper which said: "Terrible Conditions on the Border! Troopers Get Their Feet Wet!" This newspaper, called the New York Times a "Soldier's Paper" is known as the "First Illinois Cavalryman."

Thus the national guard does not lack entertainment on the border, but neither does it lack hard training work. When the government spends a lot of money on what, after all, appears to be nothing more serious than a preparedness measure, it is at least going to see that the men are prepared. Every man on the border is going to be a soldier before Uncle Sam gets through with him. Hence, the long hikes detailed by the American dailies in which the men are drilled against such hard work in such a hot climate. It was included to rebel against such hard work in such a hot climate. It was at this time that many fond parents at home began to start agitations concerning conditions on the border, spurred on by the detailed accounts of the remarkable feats performed on their sons' letters. Now, the men have ceased to brag about their own cleverness and take a 30-mile hike as a matter of course.

According to our new authority, "The Illinois Cavalryman," when the men get sick it is due to some carelessness of their own. They either eat ice cream or drink pop in a climate where such a thing is disastrous, or they attempt to lie shirtless and hatless in the sun in order to acquire a deep coat of tan, and incidentally a week or so in the base hospital. The only time the hospital were full was when the first detachment of Red Cross nurses arrived from Washington.

Not only are the guardsmen learning the business of war, but the officers themselves are gaining facility in managing large bodies of men and are trying out certain new articles of military equipment which first made their appearance upon the battle-fields of Europe. The portable kitchen, for example, is now a conspicuous feature in the commissary department. Several portable kitchens have been received from Canadian factories where they are being manufactured for Canadian regiments, and they have proved remarkably efficient on the border. They are complete kitchen outfits on trucks which permit the men to have a hot breakfast anywhere on the line of march. When in the trenches the truck is simply wheeled along the trench and each man is fed a hot breakfast—which of course could not be done if the food had to be carried from the kitchen to the trenches.

It was also soon discovered that the aeroplane was impracticable for duty owing to the peculiar lightness of the air, and the carrier pigeon had to be used for message-carriers. Thus several very special problems are being worked out among the regiments stationed in Texas which might have proved exceedingly awkward in time of actual war.

Whether the occupation of the border by the national guard was a necessary step or not, the training which they are receiving could never be duplicated anywhere else. If war should come, the United States will have at its disposal a large force of expertly trained men, already acclimated.

PERSIA TO HAVE NEW ARMY BACKED BY TWO POWERS

PETROGRAD, Sept. 19.—Hither to almost impotent Persia is to have a new army of modern character by the terms of an agreement just signed by Great Britain and Persia.

Russia will organize the army in the north and Great Britain in the south. The former will have as its basis the present Persian Cossack brigade, the numbers of which will be increased to 11,000, including infantry, cavalry and artillery, while an army of the same size will be formed in the south under British instructors.

Persian finances are to be entrusted to a mixed committee of two Persians, one Briton, one Russian and a Belgian as president. The date on which Persia has to pay her debts has been postponed and meanwhile the custom duties will be paid into the Persian treasury. The new Persian cabinet is probably.

MEDAL FOR "ATLAS" WHO HELD UP HUT ROOF

LONDON, Sept. 20.—A modern Atlas was rewarded when Second Lieutenant P. H. S. Beuzidenhout, a giant artillery officer, received the British Military Cross. His dugout was blown in by a shell which killed some others. Beuzidenhout, although stunned himself, bore the whole weight of the roof on his shoulders for some time and prevented it falling on the wounded before they could be removed to safety.

SHORT SPORT

Both the Red Sox and the Dodgers increased their lead yesterday. The Red Sox trimmed the Tigers in the first tussle between these two teams. In order to regain the leadership the Tigers must win the next two games.

The White Sox staged a ninth inning rally and held their own.

The Dodgers gained a full game on the Phillies when they defeated the Reds while the Cubs shut out the contenders.

Fourteen for the Giants. They need three more to tie their record on the first western trip.

The same teams battle in the American league today. In the National the Cardinals visit Brooklyn, the Pirates will be at Philadelphia, the Reds at Boston and the Cubs in New York.

TOUGH SOLDIER, THIS ONE OF 3,000 YEARS AGO.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—While troops were digging practice trenches on the Wiltshire downs they found the remains of a very tough old fighter of 3,000 years ago. This man, writes Lieutenant Lionel F. West, an army physician, in a medical journal, received a blow from a stone battleaxe on the forehead with such force that the axe sunk clean within the skull, leaving a sharp edged hole about three-quarters by a half-inch in size. The horrible injury was not immediately fatal, Lieut. West says, for there are signs of repair all around the wound. The warrior injured on for months, although he was a slight man of five foot two inches height.

Red Hose Won Game In Detroit

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Boston won from Detroit yesterday, 3 to 1 in the first game of the series which is expected to go far toward deciding the American league championship. Detroit was unable to hit Mays when men were waiting to score.

Dauss, usually effective against Boston, walked five men, three in the first inning. One of these, Shorten, also scored Boston's second run in the seventh. He doubled down the left field foul line and counted in two successive sacrifices.

Hooper's triple following a single by Mays accounted for the other Boston run in the eighth. Two singles and an out gave Detroit one in the fifth. Score:

RISE

Of a City's Population
MAY BE ANTICIPATED BY THE INCREASE IN THE TELEPHONE LIST.

There is no key to the development of a community more reliable than the statistics of the telephone exchange. The increased number of subscribers, the increased number of calls per day per 'phone, the increased demands for the very best there is to be had in the way of service—such indicators as these foretell the growth of a city.

Lima is a growing community. The city is growing rapidly. Each year the advance is foretold by the annual report on the statistical data of the local exchange.

The daily reports make up a peculiar human record, a document of personal life in the community. The curves of 'load,' showing the rise and fall of the number of calls each hour, reveal the activities of the city. There is the period when housewives order groceries—the line shoots up. There is the period when husbands call home to find what to bring—again there is a rise in the curve. There is the after-dinner hour of business matters, and the lull when only friendly chatter demands the wires—the line shows both. There is the period when evening engagements are made, and immediately after the evening meal the calls fall off while the engagements are filled. From these daily reports are made the annual reports, telling what Lima has done for a year and prophesying the growth of the next year.

Before the union of the two systems, February 6 of last year, the average number of calls a day on both lines was 42,000. Today it is 70,000 on one system. The Bell had 2,200 subscribers and the Home 5,600, but there were 800 houses with both. Today one system has 7,840, only 40 more than the former total. But while the rate per day per 'phone before the cut-over was 5.4, today it is 9.

Doesn't that indicate that the future development of the Lima telephone system is going to be a rather large project for experiments like municipal ownership?

Ford

The Universal Car
See the New Cars

The new Ford cars are up-to-the-minute in appearance with large radiator and enclosed fan, hood with full stream-line effect, crown fenders front and rear, black finish with nickel trimmings—a snappy looking car—and with all the dependable, enduring and economical qualities that have made the Ford "The Universal Car." One fact is worth more than a ton of guesses. Ford cars are selling from five to ten over any and all other cars, simply because they give more satisfactory service, last longer and are easier to operate and cost less to maintain—and there's no guessing about the reliability of Ford Service.

MARKETS

PRICES HIGHER ON WALL STREET MART.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—There was a strong tone shown in the initial trading on the stock exchange today when a moderate demand caused a generally higher range in the leading issues, including the recently active specialties. The supply was scant as was shown by the fact that both Marine common and preferred sold 1/4 apart at the same time on two transactions of only 100 shares each in both stocks. The preferred, which then sold at 119 1/2 rose to 120 1/2 in the next few minutes. International Nickel continued to reflect accumulation, advancing a point to 49 1/2. Anaconda moved up 1/4 to 92 1/2.

Texas company advanced 1 1/2 to 218. General Electric rose 2 points to 175 1/2. Steel common moved up 1/4 to 108 1/2. Reading was not influenced by the publication of the report of the government appeal and advanced 1/2 to 112 1/2 on small dealings. Inspiration was strong and advanced a point to 62. Maxwell Motors rose 1/4 to 94 1/2.

As a result of concentrated selling in the late forenoon many issues showed a weak tone and declined substantially. The Marines were among the weak features, the common dropping from 47 1/2 to 44 1/2 and the preferred after selling at 120 1/2 declined to 118. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies receded 3/4 to 85 1/2. Tennessee Copper lost 3 points to 22 1/2. Baldwin declined 2 1/2 points to 88 1/2 and Industrial Alcohol continued in good demand and after declining to 108, rose to 108 1/2. Reading sold at 113 1/2. Anaconda declined from 92 1/2 to 91 1/2 from which it rallied to 92.

SAYS ARMS PLANT IS BOON TO WOMAN IN GREAT BRITAIN

Parliament Member Declares Her Work in Factory Deserves Vote.

Asserts Services for Empire
Show Them Ready for Franchise.

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Writing in a London newspaper, J. M. Hogg, a prominent member of parliament, predicted victory for the women suffragists as a result of the splendid work women are doing to assist in prosecuting the war. He says:

"Women have done splendidly during the war, from the mother, who has given her son and watches the casualty list with anxiety through the long months, to the woman who is doing navy work in our munition factories.

"The efficiency of the factory women has been patient to the most cynical woman-hater. She has become ubiquitous, and what she is doing is daily convincing skeptics about her vote. Personally, I have never had any difficulty about the franchise, as I am in favor of everyone having a vote at the age of 21.

"I do not doubt that if the men in the field and in hospitals recovering honorable wounds were asked they would enthusiastically agree to put the Red Cross nurse on any franchise she desired. But this is true of more than the Red Cross nurse. Whenever women are working and whatever they are doing, there are impressing the public mind with the ability, the thoroughness and the efficiency of their work.

"To lose the interest of these zealous women in the days to come would be pure folly, and the only way to retain this interest in the great national movement is to give them the vote, which concession I feel is now bound to come.

We are looking forward to a new patriotism, or rather an intensified patriotism, after the war. Woman more than man can assist in the renaissance, and to leave them out of any new register would be to put a damper on their enthusiasm, and induce in them the regrettable feeling that the nation was prepared to use them when their services were most necessary, valuable and indispensable, and to sidetrack them with little show of gratitude and even less consideration when the need for those services had disappeared.

"To many people the part that women have played during the war has been the greatest surprise of all. They never suspected before the great conflict broke out that woman could adapt herself to many purposes. It never occurred to them that the day would come when woman's labor would be substituted for man's labor—practically every sphere of usefulness—in banks, the country house, the factory, on the tramway cars and the railway; indeed, wherever the demand for labor has arisen woman has responded to the call and shown herself competent to fit the job.

"If women can do the work of man they can debate the problems connected with that work as ably; they can form opinions about the daily interests of life as accurately, and they can exercise the franchise as intelligently.

"The opponents of the franchise for woman before the war, more or less, argued that political power must ultimately rest upon physical force. Woman has shown her physical force in productive channels that have materially assisted the nation to prosecute the war. Her war work has been definite form of physical force, and those who put their reliance upon this argument have had it rudely shattered by the facts.

"The munitions have destroyed the last refuge of the anti-suffragist."

Trench Newspapers Cheer Spirits of British Troops

LONDON, Sept. 18.—If anyone still needs proof of the high spirits of the British army in the field, and particularly of the "New Army," he may find it in a few extracts from the army's trench journals. For of trench journals there is no end, and they come from every sort of unit.

The "Whizz-Bang" is the monthly organ of the officers and men of the Durham Light Infantry. In the title of the "Iodine Chronicle" you catch the scent of the Royal Army Medical Corps. The "Vies" Patrol" is run by a new Canadian battalion, justly proud of its recent affiliation to the Victoria Rifles of Canada, a regiment with an honorable history of more than 50 years.

The Canadians are the most prolific of trench journalists. Besides the "Vies" Patrol," they bring on the "Trench Echo," written by a vivacious battalion from Winnipeg, the "Listening Post," and several more. The "Forty-niner," the "R. M. R. Growler," and the "Twentieth Gazette" are names more openly regimental.

The title of "Now and Then" is itself a frank confession of the difficulty of coming out punctually to the day in a time of "great pushes." The "Brazil" is full of happy associations for old dwellers in mid-winter trenches. But the most picturesque and suggestive title of all is that of the "Dead Horse Corner Gazette."

A trench journal is like nothing so much as a high school or university magazine. It shows the same apparent pre-occupation with games; the results of the winter's football behind the lines are tabulated and reviewed with becoming seriousness, and the prospective strength of next season's team is discussed hopefully.

There is, again, the same measured relaxation, in print, of the restraints of discipline; nearly everybody, except the commanding officer and the second in command, is gently chaffed. There is the same large output of verse, parodies, and imitations—echoes of Kipling, G. R. Chesterton, and Omar Khayyam.

And there is any amount of joking on topics which in the British Expeditionary Force never grow old or fade—the trials of mess presidents, the complexity of the established forms of official correspondence, the smallness of Belgian beer, the craft and subtlety occasionally used by the rank and file to obtain new issues of trousers or boots before the old ones are really decrepit, and the narrowness of the army's range of medicines and minor complaints.

We find the story of an Irish private who complained one day of a sore foot, was given a Number Nine (the most celebrated and least revered pill in the whole pharmacopoeia of military medicine), and re-appeared next day at sick parade, saying, "I put it under the fut, and devil a bit of good did it do me, sorr."

The geometrical definition of a subaltern as "that which has position, but no magnitude," and of a Turkish communique as "that which lies equally on any point" are neat too, and one can imagine the original roar of laughter in the dug-out when an eloquent man narrated how "we were shelled one day for 36 hours." And there are plenty of good humored caricatures and comic illustrations, like the drawing of the dumfounded face of the private who asks his laundress for the change out of his five-franc note, and is waved aside by her with a superb gesture and an airy "Après la guerre! Après la guerre!"

But all trench journalism is not humorous. Some of the serious verses are almost startlingly good, of the kind that men who have never dreamed of being poets will sometimes write under the pressure of some strong emotion—the thoughts of friends at home, or regret for the loss of a comrade, or a sense of the hardness and splendor of the opportunity that may come to a man when some call is made for volunteers.
